

Fathers' Involvement in their Children's Education

This major report takes the most comprehensive look to date at UK fathers' involvement in their children's education. To what extent are fathers involved in mainstream education, and family learning programmes? Why is this involvement so important? What is the relationship to the children's educational outcomes? And what approaches are in use to involve fathers and overcome barriers?

Thirteen 'good practice' in-depth case studies of schools and family learning providers which successfully engage fathers, plus a guide to effective practice and a set of detailed policy recommendations, make this an invaluable guide for policy makers, funders, teachers, parents and family learning practitioners.
